THOSE THAT KNOW President Coolidge will not believe Washington's yarn that the President will degrade Brigadier-General Mitchell because Secretary Withers and Weeks threaten to resign if he does not do so.

Mr. Coolidge does not impress you as a man easily controlled by threats.

THE PRESIDENT KNOWS that important revelations concerning our lack of aircraft defense are due to the courage of General Mitchell, who risked his position in the army for the truth. What Mitchell said is confirmed now by General Hines, Chief of the Staff, and by General Fries, in charge of the chemical department of the Army and Navy.

The people now know that the defense of this country has been neglected shamefully, and they know it, thanks to General Mitchell.

THE PRESIDENT will be interested especially in the testimony of Rickenbacker, champion American fighting flier in the World War.

Secretary Weeks evidently does not think flying machines important in war. But he knows less about it than Rickenbacker. The latter was flying and fighting, shooting down enemy planes and being shot at, while Mr. Weeks lacked that experience.

AND WHEN Rickenbacker says that anti-aircraft guns are no defense against flying machines, and that our respectable generals talk nonsense on that subject, he isn't THEORIZING.

He flew day after day, pursuing enemy planes, while anti-aircraft guns shot at him from the ground. Not one of them ever hit him.

The President, of course, will have the details about experiments recently made in this country, in which it was shown that a battery of anti-aircraft guns, firing at a dummy flying machine, moving not too fast and not too high, could not score a single hit.

THE PROBLEM before the people and the President is not to save the face of any ignorant or negligent army official. The problem is to make this country safe and to establish a separate air force here, as they have done in England, where they also know by experience what air fighting means.

Observe what Japan is doing, turning out five hundred fighting airplanes per month. The Japanese also know something about airplanes in war. Unlike this country, they didn't spend any ten billions of dollars or send three millions of men to Europe. They did send keen "observers," their ablest military men, to watch, study and report. And when they came back Japan began hiring the best airplane pilots and manufacturers in Europe and building airplane factories for herself.

Japan does that for herself; she doesn't let the job out to incompetent professors after the American fashion.

IT IS THE DUTY of citizens interested in this matter to make their opinions known. Every reader that knows the facts should write to the two Senators from his State, and to the Congressmen from his district, demanding adequate air defense for the United States.

In addition, earnest citizens should write to the President directly, and give him their opinions. President Coolidge is glad always to hear from the voters, just as glad to get their opinion now as he was to get that opinion last November.

POLICEMAN RESCUES 8 IN CHELSEA BLAZE

WIFE TO FOLLOW BUDLONG TO R. I.

FINAL PLEA FOR MRS. COTE

WHERE SHIRT NOTE WRITER 'STARVED'

Arrow indicates Budlong apartment on East 72nd street, New York, where the wife wrote messages, attached them to her husband's shirts and threw them out the window. Photo shows reporter trying to get a message to the woman from the roof of the building. Inset is photo of Mrs. Budlong.

DR. RICE'S PARTY LOST IN JUNGLE

The advance party of the Brazilian expedition headed by Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, famous Harvard explorer, which has been in the South American jungles since last summer, has not been heard from for fourteen days by Lieut. Walter Hinton, hydroplane scout.

In a wireless message to International News Service today, Lieut. Hinton said that the wireless base station at Boa Vista, Brazil, had heard nothing from the missing explorers.

Hinton's message to International News Service was in response to cablegrams sent him, asking what progress the expedition was making. The cablegram dated last night was picked up by an amateur station, H.R. of the Radio Club of America, and the Amateur Radio Relay League.

POLICEMAN SAVES 8 IN CHELSEA FIRE, THEN COLLAPSES

Eight times Patrolman Matthew Flaherty plunged into the burning dwelling at No. 83 Broadway, Chelsea, early today and eight times he staggered out with an unconscious form in his arms. After rescuing the entire family of Abraham Shankman, the patrolman collapsed from exhaustion and partial suffocation.

When Patrolman Flaherty discovered smoke issuing from the building he sounded a fire alarm and then forced an entrance to the house. On the second floor he found the Shankman family, all occupying the one bed room.

One at a time he carried Shankman, his wife, Minnie, and their six children, sixteen-year-old Harry, fourteen-year-old Lillian, eleven-year-old Joseph, seven-year-old Anne, four-year-old Ethel and Sylvia, down north old, to safety. As he carried Mrs. Shankman, the last one, to the open air the policeman collapsed.

The fire was extinguished after damage estimated at $1,000 had been incurred. Cause of the blaze, which started in the basement, has not been determined.

WIFE WILL FOLLOW BUDLONG TO NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Feb. 20.—To the station from the bath of the Budlongs shifted today—or was to shift—leaving the bath-servant, Elsie, to care for the warlike husband and wife.

It was in Newport that Mrs. Budlong last year set for separation and custody of her children. But she averred today that she has not lost the big battle.

Seated alone in her husband's New York apartment, straggled late of every stick of furniture except an old lounge, Mrs. Budlong declared she would follow her husband to Newport.

The announcement was made through Milton J. Budlong's secretary, Frank Karcher, man of frayed nerves through acting as butler to the warlike husband and wife.

'Economy Cal' Is Forced to Use Old Eraser

Washington, Feb. 20.—President Coolidge, felt the effect of his own economy campaign in the Executive offices today when, growing weary of writing with an ancient, dulled knife eraser, he asked for a new one.

A few moments later the old one was returned to him with word that no new ones were left and no supply ordered.

The President received the news, and his old eraser, without comment.

WELLINGTON-HILLSIDE BUS FARES INCREASED

With a threat that it would abolish the Wellington-Hillside bus line in Medford if increased fares were not permitted, the Elevated has been granted the increase by the city government. The new fare is ten cents cash or five-strip tickets for thirty cents.

The Elevated declared that the line was not a paying proposition under the former flat five-cent rate. The same meeting which granted the fare increase also granted the Elevated permission to put two more buses into service on the line.

RAYMOND L. BRIDGEMAN DIES SUDDENLY, AGED 78

Raymond L. Bridgeman, dean of Massachusetts State House reporters, died suddenly from shock at his home at West Newton today, at the age of seventy-eight. Bridgeman had been connected with State House news reporting for about forty-five years, and wrote several books on State government and legislative procedure.

MAINE DEATH CASE WILL GO INTO HANDS OF JURYMEN TODAY

Portland, Me., Feb. 20.—The last act of the tragedy in which Mrs. Lottie Freeman Cote is the leading figure, was staged in Superior Court here today.

Following the completion of arguments by counsel it was expected that before tonight the case would go to the jury to decide whether or not the frail little woman is guilty of complicity in the order of her second husband, Abner Cote.

All the legal ability of her lawyers had been exercised in an attempt to refute the testimony of Charles Henry Fisk, who confessed he shot Cote on November 2 last, but that he did it at the request of Mrs. Cote.

In his closing argument Attorney General Raymond Feltus, prosecutor, blamed Mrs. Cote to "laureate" Fisk, declaring she was the "arch-conspirator" in the murder. Damaging testimony by Sheriff King C. Graham was offered by the defense in rebuttal, when Ralph Sanborn, son of Mrs. Cote by her first marriage, was recalled to the stand.

The boy had previously stated, on failing the stand in defense of his mother, that the first he knew of Cote's murder was when he found Fisk standing over the lifeless form of his stepfather. He refuted the sheriff's testimony when called back to the witness stand.

Two hours were consumed in argument on the evidence of the woman. Mrs. Cote, appearing Fisk, for trying to get the blame for the killing on the shoulders of the woman.

"From the garden of Eden to this hour," he declared, "the woman has been blamed."

BOGUS BOMBS IN AIR TEST, SAYS MITCHELL

Washington, Feb. 20.—Hitting back again at his critics, Brigadier General William Mitchell told the House aircraft investigating committee today that the reason the battle ship Washington was not sunk from the air in the recent bombing test was that no real explosive bombs were used.

Only sand-filled projectiles were used, Mitchell said, and even these lacked the armor of the modern battleship.

Naval officers had previously denied Mitchell's claims of what had been done to the Washington.

In comparison with the 2,000-pound charges of T. N. T. were used, and T. N. T. is not the most effective explosive.

HUGHES MUST EXPLAIN MUZZLE ON KAROLYI

Washington, Feb. 20.—Chairman Borah was directed today by the Senate Foreign Relations committee to ask Secretary Hughes for the facts regarding charges that the State Department has muzzled Count Michael Karolyi, former president of Hungary, during his visit in this country.

The committee was prompted by assertions the Count Karolyi was not permitted to make public speeches or statements during his visit here, made primarily for the purpose of being with his wife, Elvira, during his visit in this country.

PHILLIPS AND GIRL VANISH

Friends Alarmed as All Trace Is Lost of Millionaire's Son and Fiancee

The disappearance of Ralph B. Phillips, wealthy Newton manufacturer, and his fiancée, Miss Margaret J. Nugent, young Hub student and daughter of a Bronx, N. Y., truck driver, has alarmed the friends of the couple.

The marriage license for which Phillips applied at Newton City Hall still remains unexplained.

It is now a month since the manufacturer or his fiancée have been seen.

GIRLS' FATHER HATES.

At the time the marriage license was filed the father of Miss Nugent issued a statement in which he declared he would never permit his daughter to marry the elder Phillips.

"Why that you Phillips is older than I am," the father said, "he is a scoundrel and I am only forty-two, while my daughter is just sixteen."

Phillips, former head of a large steam group manufacturing plants in Newton, is it regarded as one of the largest exponents in the exclusive neighborhood.

PAIR VANISHED.

At the time the elder Nugent issued his deft from the Bronx his daughter is said to have registered at the Lenox Hotel, New York, where the newspapers gave her approaching marriage so much publicity.

U. S. FLIERS SAY ARCTIC CAMPAIGN IS POSSIBLE

Camp Street, Omaha, Neb., Feb. 19.—Fliers of the first pursuit group of the United States Army Air Service, who were ordered to the rugged ridge field base today, their White air maneuvers ended.

According to Major Thos. G. Lashley, in command, the maneuvers demonstrated that the army air service can maintain an effective military campaign under Arctic conditions without any recourse to ground troops of any kind and without the aid of any other branch of the nation's military establishment.

"We could carry an attack from Michigan to Alaska as effectively as we launched an attack from Camp Street," Major Lashley said.

"We could carry on this transcontinental campaign into the Arctic with the same equipment we used this week, plus a few more instruments could not stop us in any way."

WELLESLEY GIRLS TURN SERENADERS FOR FUND

Wellesley College girls have resorted to an unusual method of raising money for their Semi-Centennial fund.

A group of wandering serenaders has been organized to sing at the various dormitories of the college and then "pass the hat."

In a vaudeville show in which the girls took part in eight skills, comprising singing, dancing, and other stunts, was also put on to swell the fund. The production was in charge of Miss Harshbarger.

ARREST SECOND GIRL IN ROGUE LORD ROBBERY

Miss Helen Sullivan, twenty-nine, of Roxbury, was arraigned in Municipal Court today, charged with complicity in the alleged theft of $1,200 in cash and jewelry from Charles Hartford, alias "Lord Ashburton," in a South End hotel three weeks ago.

Mrs. Irene Hoyle, twenty-five, of No. 40 Westland avenue, arrested by Back Bay police yesterday and held in $1,200 bonds for a hearing next Thursday, is alleged to have been a party to the robbery. A taxi driver is sought by the police as the man who used "Ashburton" to the hotel where the alleged robbery was committed.

The robbery of "Lord Ashburton" followed a two-day drinking bout at the famous eighty-year-old hotel following his arrival in the city from the Middle West.

ASK EXECUTION BY SHOOTING, NOT GAS

Reed, Nev., Feb. 19.—Substitution of shooting for gas in legal execution would be provided in a bill introduced in the Nevada Legislature.

Until the passage of the lethal gas law condemned persons in Nevada were allowed to choose hanging or firing.

"Execution by lethal gas is atrocious," said William D. S. Dickinson.

ARMED BANDITS GET $1,200 IN HOTEL HOLDUP

New York, Feb. 19.—Three armed men held up eight persons, including the proprietor, in the Circle Hotel, No. 26 West Sixty-six street, today and escaped with jewelry and cash totaling more than $1,200. They were frightened off by the screams of a woman before they had searched the three men lined up in the lobby.

WARN OWNERS TO TEAR DOWN BUILDINGS

Owners of property or building, who have failed to tear down buildings along the new $2,500,000 Cambridge and Court street thoroughfare had better start to do so before Wednesday next or the city will do it for them.

Final notice to this effect was sent today by Chairman John H. L. Noyes of the Street Commissioners, that his department will direct the commissioner of Public works to proceed on Wednesday with the demolition of all buildings that project into Cambridge Court street beyond the lines established for the widening.

Chairman Noyes stated that this drastic action was taken because of the fact that repeated legal notices having been ignored the city will now take action under authority of law.

Among buildings affected by the order are the Crawford House, Palace Theatre and Blanchard Building.

All expense attached to any action that the city might take in the tearing down of buildings will be charged to them by being deducted from the sum due the owner for his damage award.

FROTHINGHAM APPEALS TO SAVE HELIUM

500,000,000 Cubic Feet Going to Waste Yearly, Congressmen Declare

Washington, Feb. 20.—Representative Louis A. Frothingham of Massachusetts today made a vigorous appeal for immediate passage of the Helium Supply bill to conserve the precious gas which may revolutionize aeronautics.

"Our country has a monopoly of gas-containing helium. Other countries are searching the world for a supply. We are allowing 500,000,000 cubic feet of it to escape every year," said Mr. Frothingham.

Evelyn Windeler One of Season's Loveliest Buds

By Betty Alden

MR. AND MRS. G. HERBERT WINDELER were hosts last evening at a brilliant ball at the Hotel Somerset to introduce their daughter, Evelyn Windeler, to Boston's World of Fashion.

AND THE FASHIONABLE set was out in force to greet the charming young girl and her no less charming sister, Juliet, Greene, with whom she shared the evening's honors.

MRS. WINDELER'S costume was of mauve, and Mrs. Herbert W. B. Greene, mother of Juliet Greene, was in rich black velvet. They and the other guests were all in white, creating many a merry squint at the upper end of the ballroom, where many a guest made a fainting backward.

THE BALLROOM NEVER looked lovelier. There were hundreds of rose-shaded lights, and quantities of sunlight everywhere, contrasting so well with the festoons of soft feathery Southern moss. A brilliant setting for the dancers.

JUST BEYOND THE ballroom, one glimpsed the palm room, where a rose banded fountain tinkled softly and the many mirrors gave back the vision still less.

PROMINENT IN THE smart representation of the senior set, there were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Binney, Mr. and Mrs. Woburn, Mr. and Mrs. William Guston and Mrs. Charles Porter.

MR. AND MRS. WOODS had with them their house guest and niece, Miss Emily Woods, daughter of the Herbert Woods of New York. Mrs. Woods wore a costume of black satin, with jetted neck. Mrs. Binney, whose son, Horace Binney, Jr., was an usher, was in rose and silver lace with diamond ornaments in her hair and about her throat.

AS ALWAYS, Mrs. Guston was handsomely arrayed in a tulle dress of black and gold cloth. Mrs. Porter was in tulle dress of black and gold cloth. Mrs. Johnson in apricot and gilt lace. Her daughter, Mrs. Howard Johnson, wore pale blue, looking even whiter than the charming Rosemond Johnson of yesterday.

MRS. HAZEL AMORY, the erstwhile Amy Peters, was in pale rose crepe, and her mother, Mrs. William York Peters, was in black velvet with tulle.

REALLY THE MATRONS vied quite happily with the girls for sartorial honors, and carried off many a palm. There was, for instance, Mrs. Philip Gardner, in a dress of long slender train sweeping from the shoulders; Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer in jade green chiffon with banding of deep emerald velvet; and Mrs. William Kendrick Dexter in black with crystal ornaments.

THEIR DAUGHTERS were gaily outdone. Virginia Gardner was in rose and grey net, a frothy frock with many ruffles. Sally Dexter wore white silk patterned in rose and Thelma Ayer, sister white silk and gossamer lace.

CONTINUING THE mother and daughter motif—Miss Henry Dubois Taylor was in grey chiffon, Alice Taylor, her daughter, in green chiffon with banding. Mrs. George Cushing in black velvet, and Grace Cushing in tulle brocade of two toned blue.

OF THE EARLY COMERS, who chose the vantage points of the balcony to view the scene, there were Miss Sally B. Belle, in white satin with pearl gasquetry at the shoulders, and General and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, the latter in grey moiré silk through with tulle threads.

MISS ANNIE ENDICOTT NORRIS was there, arrayed in Egyptian gold cloth with pattern of dark brown, the gown with smart shoulder drapery. Miss Alice Blackpole was another representative of the senior set in a costume combining bright jade and silver.

HER HANDSOME NECK, Emma both Blackpole, also wore green moiré with flounce of silver lace. Betty Beale, soon sailing for London, was in leaf green velvet, and Peggy Porter also donned that same striking color.

THAT YOUTHFUL MATRON, Mrs. Edith Salmonson, wore honey yellow satin. Mrs. John T. J. Salmonson, her daughter, in coral chiffon, and Margaret Salmonson wore coral chiffon patterned in gilt squares.

LAST YEAR'S GIRLS made a delightful showing. There was Mary Otis, in white, with rainbow chiffon in narrow ruffles on the skirt. Alice Lore in white moiré with deep black velvet at the hem. Barbara Forbes, in white silk and net, and Peggy Warner in a tulle frock of lace, pale rose and blue and sea-shell pink.

MARY PORT, the modestly tall of Mrs. John Reed Port, was in a mauve color crepe. Helen Somers wore rose and silver brocade, and Margaret Williams a smart frock of black metal cloth dressed in grey.

ROSEMOND MURRAY'S frock was in white with spotted emerald in the waist and her sister, Mary Vincent Murray, was in very blue. Miss Leigh Holden and Miss Thonidike, two of the smart attending members of the Younger set, sat, arrived together. Miss Holden in white satin with deep fringes, and Miss Thonidike in black.

ALSO VIVIDLY attired and quite representative of her year, was Helen Green, in coral velvet, and Mary Ward of tulle and outch about her shoulders. Ellen Frothingham, of the band, echoed the same bright tone in her satin frock with its swinging shawl drapery, and Kathleen Hotch, as usual delightful to behold, was in green.

Mrs. Louis R. DeStiguer, a patroness for this evening's Aviation Ball, an annual classic of the late Winter season, put on by the Aero Club of Massachusetts at the Coppley-Plaza.

IT WAS A CREPE, with many tiny ruffles forming the skirt, and two shoulder panels caught at the belt and swinging jauntily as she danced.

ONE MAY ALWAYS expect gay rows on the buds, and one is never for a moment disappointed. Last evening they were out in force, all smartly frocked. Sally Robbins was in rust velvet, Catherine Robb in a pastel tinted gown, and Jean Foster in yellow with roses caught here and there.

DARK EYED ELEANOR GIBSON, a gracious member of the just-out society, wore gold cloth, Eleanor Mason, matron moiré, Helen Mosley, sky-blue with touches of rose, and Nancy Wentworth, white crepe with crystal bead design.

ISABEL SHAW set off her pure blonde beauty with a gown of cream blue crepe. Alice Leavelle was radiant in rose and gold, and Elizabeth Patterson wore crisp white taffeta, bouffant and most becoming.

CAROLINE TOWLER's gown was palest yellow crepe, the side drapery swinging from an ornament of shining cut crystal and sequins. Nancy Dutton bound her hair with a brilliant hairnet and donned a frock of ivory tulle, and Margaret Gramis was in amaranth green velvet with steel beading.

ATHELIA PATSON was another bud of blue and gold, and last evening she wore that tulle in chiffon with swirling drapery. Brownie's frock of pale rose with beading was exquisite.

VIRGINIA LEGER added to her white frock some bright touches of rose, in the wide head band, and at the shoulder where she posed a single flower. Rosemond Thonidike was in a shimmering gown of gold cloth.

OF ALL THE BUDS, there are none handsomer or more striking than Sally Porter and Elizabeth Forbes. Each is distinctly good to look upon, and each dresses charmingly.

LAST EVENING Miss Fenno was in white with tulle, and Sally Porter was in green moiré, with fur outlining the flaring hemline. Sally Porter is the daughter of the Alexander Porters, and is shining brightly in the late season affairs of the buds.

CARDINAL GIVES REGULATIONS FOR LENT

To Be Read From Churches on Sunday; Observance to Begin on Wednesday

Regulations for Lent will be read from the altars of all Catholic churches in the diocese Sunday. Lent begins next Wednesday.

All the days of Lent, except Sundays, are fast days. The Lenten fast ends at noon on Holy Saturday. All between the ages of 21 and 29 are obliged to fast, except the sick and convalescent; women in delicate health and condition; those to whom fasting would cause grave injury to health, or produce such illness or exhaustion as would interfere with their daily duties; and those whose occupations are of a very laborious and exhausting nature. Those who doubt whether they are excused or not should consult their confessor.

Those obliged to fast are allowed but one meal, either at noon or in the evening. During Lent every Wednesday and Friday, and the second Saturday are days of abstinence. However, by apostolic privilege of the Holy See, working people and their families are obliged to abstain from meat only on Ash Wednesday and Fridays. On all other days of abstinence those of the family who are obliged to fast may eat meat at their principal meal; those not obliged to fast may eat meat at any of their meals.

The use of meat and fish at the same meal is no longer forbidden. Those who are excused from fasting or abstinence during Lent should practice self-denial in some other way.

The usual Lenten devotions will be provided in all the churches of the diocese, and the faithful should endeavor by earnest prayer, heartfelt contrition and the worthy receiving of the sacraments to profit by the special graces of the Holy Season.

The time for completing with the precept of Paschal communion extends hereafter from the first Sunday or Lent to Trinity Sunday. On Sunday, a letter from Cardinal O'Connell will be read in all the churches of the archdiocese, asking for a hearty response in the annual collection for the Pope, to be taken up March 1, the first Sunday in Lent.

The Cardinal stated that in these days it is to America principally that the Pope turns for help, so that he may meet, in part at least, the many requisitions made upon him by the poor, the indigent and the distressed. "Let our contributions," he said, "be a sign of our loving love and devotion to the Holy See."

JOSEPH JEFFERSON WINDOW TO BE UNVEILED
New York, Feb. 20.—A memorial window to Joseph Jefferson, famous in the preceding generation as a great American actor, will be unveiled today at the Church of the Transfiguration, popularly known as the "Actors' Church," and "The Little Church Around the Corner."

FOUR NEW PATTERNS Arrive from Abroad

Showing Advance Styles in Dinnerware
These new members of our "Open Stock" family indicate the latest trend in dinnerware fashions, the English semi-porcelain in its coloring, the Bavarian China in its shapes.

The old ivory finish has long been shown in the most exclusive dinnerware. Now comes beautiful English semi-porcelain within the reach of every purse, showing this hitherto obtainable only in the most high priced china.

The Meaford has the old ivory ground and carries a border of golden yellow and lacy black—a centre decoration of the tree design. Each piece has the embossed fluting so popular just now.
Service for six (42 pieces).....$24.05

The Grimsby has a border of sunshine yellow and twilight gray, outlined in black. Inside the border runs a fine pattern of delicate embossing in an unusual design.
Service for six (42 pcs.), $21.25

The Kendal has a narrow border quite distinctive. Behind a fine woodland brown lattice is laid an azure blue, and the combination is broken at intervals by a medallion of English roses. The delicate embossing inside the border further enhances its beauty.
Service for six (42 pcs.), $21.25

The Brunswick, smartly modeled, with footed cups and other features found only in the most expensive wares, is a pattern that you may use with pride for all occasions. Charming motifs of potted flowers contrast effectively with a shadowy blue lace border that brings out the full beauty of the china.

SILENT FOR 29 YEARS, WOMAN WINS $20,000

Architect Appreciated Office Worker's Guarding of Business Secrets

New York, Feb. 20.—Out of the Surrogate's Court came the story of a woman who had known how to keep her own counsel for twenty-nine years and reaped the benefit of her reticence by inheriting $20,000 from her employer.

Her associates have pronounced Miss Margaret Hackmeister of No. 112 Jefferson avenue, Brooklyn, "the most silent woman in New York."

For twenty-nine years she worked in the architect's office of Arnold W. Brunner at No. 101 Park avenue, Manhattan, and in that time Brunner had come to appreciate that even the smallest secret of his business was entirely safe with her.

He had often said that Miss Hackmeister could be trusted to keep the secrets of European chancelleries.

Even her sisters, Catherine and Carrie, who live with her, did not know of her good fortune until a reporter told them of it.

REV. JOSEPH HUNT IS GOING TO CHINA

Rev. Joseph Hunt, formerly of Boston but now a member of the American Catholic Foreign Mission Society at Maryknoll, N. NEW ARMS PARLEY IN SPRING, LONDON HEARS

London, Feb. 20. (A.P.)—Another step toward bringing about a limitation of armaments conference in Washington developed today when it was announced in diplomatic circles that the attitude of the British government was at all times to back up any move by the United States to establish international peace on a firmer basis. It was considered that the conference is likely to be called for the coming summer. As viewed in London, the conference would be confined to naval limitation, but there are hopes that perhaps the conversations sooner or later might be developed to consider armies.

The Combined Buying Power of a Great Consolidation of Stores supervised the production and dictated the purchase price of these suites.

A League of Many Stores, serving a multi-tude public, demanded and obtained tremendous concessions—forcing the makers to figure initially lower than the most favorable pleadings of any single organization could hope to obtain. It was a matter of cold, uncompro-mising logic, dealing with our combined Store Day. We improved quality-workmanship—value conditions. Don't you see how our Many-Store Alliance can use the COST figure to the individual store for OUR SELLING PRICE!

See these Suites—they make an irresistible appeal to a wise investment in genuine luxury! Suites that any store would be pleased to sell at $200 (and "crow" loud about their achievement!) we sell at $110!

FINDS STRANGE MAN IN HOME; WINS DIVORCE

West End Husband Returned
Earlier Than Expected.
He Testifies

When a storm drove Anthony Fabian of Myrtle street, West End, home early from an automobile ride with a man friend, one evening, he found his wife, Stephanie, in his room, playing host to a tall, young stranger, according to Fabian's story today before Judge Prosser in Suffolk Court.

Fabian was granted a decree nisi, his wife did not appear to contest his charges. Fabian said he left home on the night in question, saying he would return at 10, but returned an hour earlier. His wife did not answer his knock at first, and when she did open the door seemed to be greatly excited, he said. Fabian produced a witness who testified to his description of the stranger who ran out through the kitchen as the husband entered.

Emily Eng, of Lynn, was granted a decree nisi from her husband, Charles Eng, a Chinaman, who charged desertion in June, 1921, when the couple resided at No. 31 Chelsea street, Charlestown. Eng, she testified, told her he was tired of her. She said she pleaded in vain with him to stay and that after the separation she has met him on the street only to be ignored. Eng is now living in Pawtucket. The couple were married in May, 1920, in Lynn, and have no children.

MANAGER HOST AT CHEVROLET DANCE

More than 200 members of the organization of Silo-Charvolet Company, distributor for New England of Chevrolet motor cars, gathered at Beacon Hall, Brookline, last night for the annual Winter dance, a regular feature in the social program of the company. Members of the general committee were H. S. Thompson, chairman, with L. B. Davidson, F. J. Hackett, I. M. Schell, P. B. Crockett and A. McKenna as associate members.

MOTORIST KILLS MAN ON CAPITAL'S MAIN ARTERY

Washington, Feb. 20.—George Vane, 26, of 1000 Massachusetts avenue, a wild, reckless, accompanied by the popping of pistol shots, was made the setting today for the killing of one man and the injury of ten others by an automobile driver. Walter E. Woodrick, a newspaper man, the police said, ran his machine upon a crowd on leading platform, clearing it of its occupants and killing one man.

BURLONG AHEAD ON POINTS IN LONG SIEGE

Burlong Now Leads in Points Scored

New York, Feb. 20.—Milton J. Burlong, 40, of 100 Madison street, New York, was today leading his heroic wife in the contest of endurance which he had just a week ago when Mrs. Burlong slipped into the East River, 150 feet from shore, and looked back alone in his bedroom.

MILK, CRACKER DIET.

Every piece of furniture in the apartment, even in the bedroom, was turned out and away to Newport, where Burlong declares he will make his future residence.

Today the battery of reporters, cameramen, motion picture cameras and the mob of curious New Yorkers to whom Burlong's story is a daily hot dog, hot drink and "Burlong's milk shirts" daily gathered to see what Mrs. Burlong would do now. Bets were about even that her supply of milk shirts was out and that therefore she had no more ready bulgur for notes.

The estranged wife, who broke her fast last night, continued her milk and cracker diet today in the apartment.

Shortly after they had moved over last week of expensive furniture from other rooms of the place, six husky draymen, led by the faithful Frank Kowher, Mr. Burlong's secretary, hallooed before Mrs. Burlong door.

The door was locked—the lights were out—but a sound could be heard beyond the outer panels. The beleaguered wife had retired.

BREAK DOWN DOOR.

"Mrs. Burlong, will you kindly vacate your room?" queried Kowher. "We have been ordered to remove the furniture."

After a reasonable interval and no reply, six muscular shoulders hurled in unison with a heavy kick and heave, shattered its lock and hinges.

"Turn on the lights—turn on the lights," came a frenzied voice from the bed. "What do you want—do you try to scare me to death?"

The lights went out. The furniture went out. Bed, dresser, wardrobe, chair, chest, bureau—everything—while Mrs. Burlong, a figure held tightly about her, crouched in a corner and made no comment.

GIVEN OLD COUCH.

"Here is a note from your husband," the efficient Kowher, with a Christlike smile, handed this message to Mrs. Burlong:

"Your conduct has made it impossible for me and the children to ever again occupy this apartment. I have decided to move the furniture, give up the place and again become a resident of Newport, only place I've ever had a home."

WIFE OF PRISONER IN THEFT FROM BANK

Mrs. Richard L. Broome, whose husband is held as material witness in the wrecking of Kingston R. I. Trust Company by its secretary-treasurer, Miss Maud Tefft.

STATE WITNESS DENIES STOKES CASE COERCION

Insists He Consented Voluntarily to Testify Against the Millionaire

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The defense today resumed cross-examination of Joseph Bruner, former cabman and state witness, in the trial of W. E. Stokes, New York millionaire, in an attempt to show coercion. Stokes is charged with conspiracy to defraud his wife, Mrs. Helen Edmond Stokes.

Bruner, who had admitted he was held in jail for a time, said after telling officers of the police station he wanted to talk with the assistant state's attorney, Milton D. Smith, he was taken to the state's attorney's office.

Bruner said his imprisonment had followed his refusal to testify for the state.

He testified that after he was taken from the cell he said he would testify and that he had been in the custody of a policeman, sleeping with him as a result.

"No attempt was made, was there, to obtain false affidavits?" asked J. J. Healy, counsel for Daniel H. Nugent, attorney on trial with Stokes.

"I wouldn't say that," said Bruner. "I don't know."

"MONEY MAD"

State College who were depositors in the Kingston Trust Company will have no immediate effort made in dislodging them from the bank, according to John E. Balow, secretary-treasurer of the Wakefield Trust Company, offered to assist them and members of the faculty who have suffered losses. Students who lost through the embezzlement were instructed by President Howard E. Edwards of the college to notify the administration office.

Friends of Miss Tefft, whose father's exemplary life had made her one of the community's leading residents, say she was afflicted by a money madness long ago, on insanity. An injury suffered in a fall two years ago, they say, may be able to diagnose, is responsible for her condition, they say.

TOOL FOR OTHERS

Utterly blinded to the fundamental principles of financing, the friends of the accused girl declare she was an easy tool for those who duped her.

Locked up in the county jail, Miss Tefft refuses to discuss her sanity, but a dozen pairs of zealous eyes adorn the cell. The woman whose zealous eyes have watched her heart, where she worked so many years, apparently is resigned to her fate. She refuses to consult a lawyer, but her friends insist that she will be examined as to her sanity, wily, wily.

In the same jail, just a short distance away, Broome occupies another cell. His bail has been increased to $10,000, but within a few hours he will be raised to double that figure, authorities indicate. Held as a material witness, Broome is going to become the stellar figure in the looking of the man, friends of Miss Tefft insist.

Two years ago Miss Tefft, tall, just outside the bank. The cell, which she and since that time her friends say, she had a mania for obtaining vast sums of money.

Attorney-General Charles F. Smith, who has completed his investigation of Broome's activities in New York, is gloomy over the outlook for recovering the $110,000 stolen by Miss Tefft.

What you should pay! for your groceries!

MANSON USED AS CACHE BY BOOTLEGS
Pittsfield, Feb. 20.—The cellar of the Cobb-Coleman mansion has been revealed by a police raid as the headquarters for one of the largest bootlegging operations ever unearthed in this section.
With the owner of the mansion spending the winter in Florida, the bootleggers held undisputed sway in the mansion, having the caretaker as a member of the gang, the police say.
In conducting the raid, early today, 1,000 gallons of Belgian alcohol was uncovered.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Lung Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Crocodile That Is Pleasant to Take

Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with a twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ. Of all known drugs, Creomulsion is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to its other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation to the stomach, it absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist, Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

DANCE FOR NEW CHURCH FUND ON HOLIDAY

Ball in Aid of St. Ann's Parish, Wollaston, to Be Held in New State Armory

The celebration of Washington's birthday in Wollaston will be fittingly observed on Monday at the new State Armory on Hancock street when an entertainment and dance will be given in aid of the building fund of the new St. Ann's Church.
St. Ann's church, a only a little over two years old, having been founded June 15, 1922, the first mass being said in Massie Hall, Wollaston, July 1, 1922, with Rev. John J. Fitzgerald as the celebrant. Henry J. Langleiter is general chairman of the building fund.
The new church site is a most commanding one, located on Hancock street, near Elm avenue. The celebrating for the foundation of the new church began Nov. 15, 1924.

ENGLISH HIGH '86 PLANS FOR 40TH CLASS REUNION
Plans for the fortieth annual reunion of the class of 1886, English High School, next year, were discussed at the thirty-ninth dinner of the class in the Varsity Club with an attendance of twenty-five members.

The fortieth reunion, at which it is hoped more than half of the 116 now living members will turn out, is to take the form of an afternoon eating at a country club, with sports, dancing, and a dinner. The committee to run the affair will be appointed by J. Porter Crosby, the new class president.

Clinton J. McCarthy, the retiring class president, presided at the meeting, while Arthur L. Norton, president of English High School Association, was guestmaster.

MR. PARRISH was proud. He didn't have a bank president's income but he paid cash for his diamond ring just the same.

And when his appendix backfired, and the doctor got through charging him, he found himself in a neat financial jam.

Mr. Watson was wise. He didn't have a bank president's income either—but he had a bank president's self respect, which is more to the point.

He paid us $2.00 down for his diamond ring and the balance at $1.00 per week. He got just as nice a ring, just as good a price, and a lot more satisfaction out of the whole transaction.

For Deep Chest Colds

All colds should be treated with vapors, for vapors alone can carry the medication DIRECTLY to the air passages and lungs.

Vicks is a "vapor" treatment in salve form. For deep chest colds you first apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores, then massage briskly with Vicks for 5 minutes, spread on thickly and cover with a flannel cloth.

Vicks not only penetrates like a poultice or plaster, but the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long. This double action usually checks the most stubborn cold overnight.

FAKE DRY MEN GET 8 CASES OF WHISKEY

Search Worcester House After Cutting the Phone Wires;
Have Bogus Warrant

Worcester, Feb. 20.—(Press.)—Federal prohibition agents, five in all, raided the home of Isaac Goldberger, No. 7 Lenox street, of eight cases of whiskey, valued at nearly $1000.

Presenting what they claimed was a search warrant to Goldberger's twenty-year-old daughter Lena, the men searched the house, discovering the liquor in the cellar.

They loaded it into a touring car and drove away. According to the authorities no warrant was issued by U. S. Commissioner Edwin H. Crandall, and members of the local police force were not in the scene of the raid.

When the men left the house

'Too Many Girls' In This New Jersey City

Ocean City, N. J., Feb. 20.—

This city to wrestle with the problem of too many girls, according to a report by the Chamber of Commerce. There are 1,543 women of legal age and only 1,077 men. The situation has led to a threatened movement to broadcast the chances here for eligible young men, preferably bachelors and widowers who have reached the age of discretion and would make settled, desirable citizens, so as to deliver the town from threatened "barrenness."

Miss Goldberger attempted to telephone for her father, a well-known at his office in Boston, but found the wires were cut.

The girl told the police that she had received a telephone call asking if her father was at home. She replied in the negative and a few minutes later a car drove up containing five men.

ROMAN PUPILS TO GIVE DANCE EXHIBITION

Pre-Lenten Social Event Saturday Night in Dorchester

One of the leading social events of the pre-Lenten season is the mid-year ball of fancy dancing given by the pupils of Margaret O. Roman in Bloomfield Hall, Geneva avenue, Dorchester, Saturday night.

The affair promises many surprises by the little folks who will entertain their parents and friends. Feature dances will be the new popular Crossword Puzzle and Oriental Chavette. Many talented and well known juvenile artists will appear in these specialties. Jam dancing will also make up a good part of the program.

Little Eleanor Ihley, pictured above, is among the many talented juveniles who will entertain next Saturday evening at Miss Margaret Roman's annual pupils' party.

NAVAL OFFICER HIT BY BASKET; LIFE IN PERIL

Manila, Feb. 20.—(Associated Press.)—Ensign E. B. Lapham, chief engineer of the flagship U. S. S. Hiram, of the Asiatic fleet, was seriously injured today when he was struck by a coal basket while the Hiram was coaling from a barge. He was knocked overboard. His head struck the side of the ship. Seaman Fox was injured also but not seriously. It was said at the Cavite Hospital that Lapham might recover.

BUTTER AND CHEESE GAIN IS 34 PER CENT.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The price of cheese and condensed milk industry of the United States had an output in 1923 valued at $190,830,164, an increase of 34 per cent. over 1921, the preceding census year. Census Bureau figures made public today showed butter production to total 1,392,683,304 pounds; cheese production, 557,937,161; condensed milk, 412,414,651, and evaporated milk, 3,392,252,842.

AMADOR WOULD KEEP CHAPLIN TROUSERS

Los Angeles, Feb. 20 (Universal).—Charles Amador is willing to give up Charlie Chaplin's name, but he wants to keep the famous comedian's pants.

This was the substance of a declaration made by Amador's lawyers against Amador's suit to keep the comedian's pants.

"We are willing to stipulate," said the attorneys, "that our client will abandon the name Charles Amador, but we strenuously insist that Chaplin has no copyright in any costume we may want our client to wear. Chaplin's makeup has been used long before he began to use it."

But Charlie disagreed. "We are willing to stipulate," said the attorneys, "that our client will abandon the name Charles Amador, but we strenuously insist that Chaplin has no copyright in any costume we may want our client to wear. Chaplin's makeup has been used long before he began to use it."

Wearing his hand from the witness stand and looking carefully with a slight accent, Chaplin declared Amador had copied his costume too faithfully.

"Of course, there have been other comedians," said Charlie, "who have worn similar clothes. What I object to is the imitation of the complete characterisation, as this comprises a matter of human attitude, psychology, and philosophy. Anyone may wear a battered derby or a solid collar, but why should any one be permitted to imitate that which I originate, the product of my own mind?"

Advertisement IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

If Back Hurts or Bothers You,
Take Jad Salts

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter them from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clogged you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clear a stimulant, sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Jack Dempsey Is Opposed to Women in Prize Ring

Tells of Phases of Paris Life That Amazed During Visit to That City

By JACK DEMPSEY.
(As Told to W. B. Seabrook.)
CHAPTER XXV.

"W HEN I think of Paris," said Jack Dempsey, "I think of girls—and whenever I think of Berlin, I think of dogs."
He was showing me the four points of his favorite pet, a magnificent police dog—not the type popularly known in America as a police dog, which is in reality a shepherd dog, but the big black, straight-haired "can killer"—the Doberman Pinscher, faithful to master and ferocious, but worse than any tiger in a fight. Dempsey is crazy about dogs. He must have more than a hundred of them, scattered over the country, in London outside New York, in Atlantic City, on his ranches and farms in the West—bonds, police dogs, shepherd dogs, bird dogs—he even once caught a wolf and tamed it and made a pet of it.

"You know, I was mobbed by girls in Paris, and I was mobbed by dogs in Berlin. I wasn't my fatal beauty or any bunk of that sort, but they—these French girls—on the boulevards and in the theatre lobbies, and everywhere we went, crowded around, so that you could hardly push your way through them or get away from them. Of course it wasn't me, Jack Dempsey, it was just the heavyweight champion of the world, they called it."

CANINE INVASION.

"In Berlin, about the dogs, it was something different. That was a big job. We went up at the Adlon, the biggest hotel in Berlin, I guess, and we had a big lot of people, and some newspaper men, and a story in the 'Herald' saying that I was interested in dogs, and that I had come to Berlin to buy some."

"Kearns and I had a room looking out on a sort of courtyard or square. You know I sleep sound, and I don't like to be wakened up. The next morning about 8 o'clock, I rolled over in bed, half asleep, and I heard such a yelling and barking and howling and yapping that I opened my eyes, and I heard it louder than ever. And Kearns, who was sitting up looking his eye over in the twin bed, says, 'Hey, for—' and then what goes on?"

"We went to the window to see what looked like a thousand people, all sorts of people, men, women and children—and all of them had brought dogs that I found out afterward they wanted me to buy."

"All of them had at least one dog. Some of them had two or three on leashes, or held by the collar, or puppies in their arms."

"That afternoon the Mayor of Berlin sent for me in a big car, and we picked him up afterward at his house, and then he took me to the place where they train police dogs, and showed me some of these animals."

"They had some of the dogs that go by the name of police dogs here in America, but their prize dogs were the black ones, the Poodles. I thought I don't see many of in this country."

"And what they taught them, I believe me, was the rough stuff for fair. I'd hate to be a gunman in Berlin with those black devils after me."

THE MAYOR'S GIFT.

"Well, the Mayor of Berlin gave me one of these dogs of the breed, and I thought I had a lion on my hands at first, but you can see him here now. He's honest and faithful. He's got sense enough to know what he's about. And there's no nonsense in him. Kids have played with him. I wouldn't be afraid to trust a baby with him."

"Say, that night we saw another fight in Berlin. I'll never forget girls fighting in the ring, like men—not just boxing exhibitions—but pretty girls, as pretty as those in an American musical show, coming into the ring and fighting until they were exhausted or knocked out."

"I don't want to see it any more. I think it's all right for men, but it's dead wrong for women, when they fight that way."

"Walker Rutt and Dr. Leslie Meyer took us to see it. It was in a big dance hall. They had a regular ring better set up than a fight. I've fought in, and everything that goes with it for a regular prize fight."

REAL, ROUGH STUFF.

"Ten good-looking girls came out together, some of them seeming not to be more than seventeen or eighteen years old. Except that they weren't stripped to the waist, but wore tight caps over their hair, they were dressed just like men fighters."

"The first fight, a preliminary, was between a slender, fast blond, one of the prettiest, youngest ones, and an older, heavier-built girl who wasn't so fast, but was stronger. I thought, even then, it was going to be just a light boxing exhibition, but at the end of the first round the pretty, slender girl was bleeding from the nose and mouth, and tears were streaming out of her eyes in a way that was pitiful to see. It's too fun over to see a girl or a woman cry—at least not to me."

"I thought they were going to stop it, but it went right on to the next round. They told me the girl had to stick until she was knocked out, or she wouldn't be paid at all, and that the amount she got would depend on how long she stuck."

"In that second round the bigger girl went after her with a downright cruelty and violence that I've never seen any man show in a ring. You could see she wasn't trying to knock her out. She was just punishing her and hitting her all she could, without trying to finish it off. I can't imagine why, but the crowd liked it. They were terribly excited."

"And at the end of the third round,

Fond of Dogs, He Was Presented With Handsome One During Trip to Berlin

When the big hit was sobbing and trying to get her breath in her corner, and it looked as if she couldn't go on, they went around and collected a big haul of money which they took and showed her. The end of that fight was one of the most unexpected things I ever saw.

"The girl I had been fasting so sorry for went into that fourth round with her face all covered with blood, and I think she hardly knew what she was doing. She began with a desperation, and a lucky, awkward swing landed on the other girl's middle, as low as a blow could be without being a foul, and she crumpled up. I won't tell you about the other fights. Some of them were even crueller. I believe in boxing, I believe in ring fighting. But not for girls, not for women."

In the next chapter, Jack Dempsey tells of his intimate friendship with Sir Thomas Lipton—of why he was afraid to go to ride with Bobe Dolan—includes his letter to his publisher, and his childhood in the West.

KEARNS GOT 30-DAY JAIL TERM, HE SAYS

Denying the Charges of Mary Tenney, He Admits He Was Convicted of Assault

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20.—Accusations of Mrs. Mary Tenney, actress and motion picture actress, were denied by Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, heavyweight pugilistic champion, when he testified in Mrs. Tenney's $100,000 damage suit, based on allegations that Kearns drugged and attacked her.

Kearns admitted that when he was fifteen years old, twenty-one years ago, he was convicted of assault with intent to commit a felony and sentenced to thirty days.

Kearns testified that he first met Mrs. Tenney on the night of May 2, 1914, when the attack is alleged to have occurred. At her request, he said, he drove her in his automobile from a Universal City studio to Hollywood, where he stopped at a friend's home to telephone. He left the house without Mrs. Tenney twenty minutes later, he said, telling her he would summon a taxicab for her.

He said that during his brief stay in the house Mrs. Tenney was not molested.

Attending Doctor Declares the Star's Condition Is "Satisfactory," However

Paris, Feb. 20.—It has been "considered advisable," Dr. Vaudoual announced today at the Montmartre Hospital, to call into consultation Professor Bardet to discuss the condition of Gloria Swanson, famous American film star.

Miss Swanson's temperature today was 102.5. Dr. Vaudoual said last night it was approximately 101. "Although Professor Bardet will be called into consultation," explained Dr. Vaudoual, "Miss Swanson's condition is satisfactory."

Miss Swanson underwent an operation several days ago.

SHOTS HALT BROOKLINE AUTOIST IN WESTON

Cowboys centering targets with six-shooters from the decks of plunging bronchos have nothing on Paulman J. Sumner, Vice of the Weston police department. Mounted on a dancing filly, Vice "built a smoke" around Everett J. Ryan of No. 1825 Beacon street, Brookline, speeding in a car on Central avenue, Weston, last Friday. One shot pierced a side door, smacked under the driver's knees, and lobbed off into the dark. Something seemed to Ryan to behoove him to stop. In Waltham Court charged under the influence of liquor, he pleaded not guilty. The case was continued one week.

PONZI USED UP WOMAN SUING FORTUNE FOR HUSBAND DIES SUDDENLY

Expended $145,000 in a Few Months to Reach the High Spots

Twitting today in the Superior Court trial of Charles Ponzi, Charles P. Rittenhouse, Boston accountant who examined the books after receivers were appointed, said Ponzi facetiously offered him an international reply coupon worth five cents by way of contributing to his aunts. His liabilities, according to Rittenhouse, were about $7,600,000.

The witness stated he also found a record of Ponzi's personal expenses, over a period of a few months, amounting to $145,000. This led Assistant District Attorney Deane to remark to the defendant: "You were hitting the high spots."

The accountant said he found no correspondence with any man named Ponzi, claimed by Ponzi to have been his foreign agent, neither was there any correspondence about international reply coupons.

B. & M. Stockholders Fight Lorings Train Cut Plan

WILE BACK DRIVE BY CROOKER

N. H. Protective Association
Counsel Addresses Meeting in Manchester

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 20.—Boston's Maine stockholders living in New Hampshire are urged to fight back and take the plan of the "Stockholders' Protective Association" to a final vote of the company.

The continuance of several years of the road's system in this state.

Representatives of all classes of B. & M. stock owned in New Hampshire were on record, at a meeting of the "Stockholders' Protective Association" here, as opposed to an assessment on the share holders as proposed by Lorings, an officer of the road's committee.

Counsel W. C. Crook, of Boston, gave counsel for the Protective Association declared that under the reorganization plan the holders of the road's stock would be assessed $12 a share. The holders of the stock, a preferred $15 a share and common stock holders $10 a share.

It was the proposed alternative was a reduction of 10 per cent of the stockholders' 15 per cent of the stockholders and 40 per cent of the common stock. The stockholders' plan was to be used to induce investors to put up money which the stockholders would not furnish.

The stockholders' committee declared would be asked to become members to the extent of $100,000 in the next five years and to an unlimited extent in the future.

The road is co-operating, as the Boston committee reported, "to get you again," he said. "You can be raised a third a reorganization."

Crook announced the committee was a plan to raise a third a reorganization. Crook announced the committee was a plan to raise a third a reorganization.

Suitors' Photos Taboo in Rooms at Simmons

No matter how much in love a Simmons girl may be, she can't glue her beloved's photograph on the wall, and if she does so, a stern effort, issued by the Student Government Council, states she will be fined in cents for the offense. Over a year of warning their pictures out the plaster, authorities say.

R. T. HI-JACKERS WERE FEDERAL AGENTS

Providence, Feb. 20.—A newspaper reporter who went out to "Run Row" after a "celebrity" story and who landed with a load of liquor and a score of supporting run runners on the R. T. Hi-Jackers, Middlebury, escaped from the scene after a thrilling battle between prohibition agents and the hoodlums.

The hoodlums, who were armed with revolvers and shotguns, were seen to be in a state of panic when the federal agents arrived.

TWO HARVARD CREWS GOING TO PRINCETON TO TRAIN

STEVENS HAS NOVEL PLAN

Two crews from the Stevens Institute of Technology are going to Princeton, N. J., to train for the coming season. The plan was conceived by Coach Stevens, who is a member of the American Rowing Association. The crews will be made up of the best rowers from the Stevens Institute. They will be coached by Coach Stevens and will be expected to win the championship at the annual indoor regatta in Princeton, N. J., in the month of March.

HUNTINGTON QUITS HARVARD SCHOOL MEET

By FRED C. LANE
Huntington School is the latest to withdraw from the Harvard Intercollegiate Track Meet which takes place at Mechanics Building on February 22. The Back Bay School withdrew from the Class A Prep school division, and since the other private schools entered could not furnish Coach Whitling's boys with any kind of competition, it was decided to quit.

Harvard authorities notified the Huntington School that because of a ruling allowing them but one track meet in a season, they would be unable to show Worcester Academy and the other private schools entered could not furnish Coach Whitling's boys with any kind of competition, it was decided to quit.

Country Day, Cushing Academy, Phillips Exeter, Andover, and Nichols, Belmont Hill, Noble and Worcester, Milton Academy, Mount Vernon, St. John's Prep, Thornton Academy, William Seminary and other schools will make up the list of private schools.

The Class A division of public schools is composed of Boston Latin, Brookline, Newton, English Comm. High, Medford, Lincoln, Lawrence, Somerville, Plymouth, and other schools.

TONIGHT'S LINEUPS AT ARENA
BOSTON COLLEGE vs. MCGILL UNIV.
The Boston Hockey Club and the McGill University Hockey Club will clash in the second game of the season.

After playing a 1 to 2 tie game at the arena last night, Boston College will face McGill again tonight at the arena.

McGill's performance against the Eagles tonight was a decided surprise. Their team work was far superior to the showing made in their first visit to Boston early in the season.

It looked like clear sailing for the Eagles when they chalked up two wins in the first period. The team went on the defense with the advantage and here the play of the visitors became fierce. The invaders managed to score a tally through the defense of the Eagles.

Hear the Difference with a Simplex Tuner

Sharper tuning, greater volume, bell-like clarity—these are the reasons you should have the Simplex DX Tuner in your set. Spiral-wound, thin, flat, rolled rotor with 180 degree range—special windings spaced just right for full volume and extreme selectivity—no relation used to hold windings—these explain Simplex high efficiency.

All metal parts, brass, nickel plated, except two aluminum bracket casings. Binding posts on rear of tube do away with need for soldering.

RE-VI-VO "A" and "B" Batteries look and cost the same as ordinary dry cells—BUT after they are used you can attach them to the house electric current and bring them back to original strength. This can be done 8 to 10 times. No technical knowledge or elaborate equipment is needed. Cost of recharging is negligible. Stronger and last longer than any other make.

Whether your set is home built or factory made, it will give you the best reception when operated on RE-VI-VO "A" and "B" Dry Cell batteries.

Dubilier Condensers

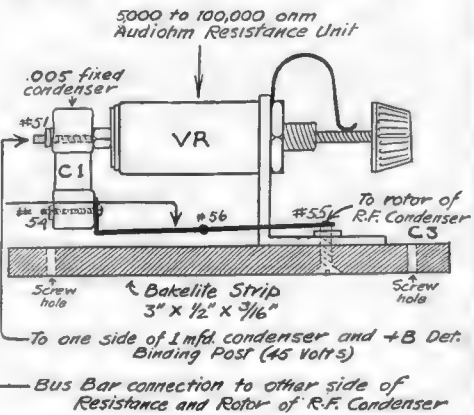

Important Links between the Shenandoah and Land

COMMUNICATION with land—under all conditions—at all times—this was the imperative need of the Shenandoah on its experimental flight across the continent. Impressed with this need, army and navy engineers equipped both transmitting and receiving sets with Dubilier mica condensers—not specially designed condensers, but the regular standard product. Only complete confidence in the supreme reliability and efficiency of Dubilier condensers can explain their use in this important and daring adventure.

THE RESISTANCE AND CAPACITY

DETAIL OF RESISTANCE UNIT

THE VARIOMH AND AUDIOHMH UNITS

By M. A. SIMMONS
Technical Radio Editor

In the drawing is shown the method for mounting the Electrical Audion unit that is to be used for the resistance audio reflex unit. This simplifies the mounting of the two parts required in the unit, and at the same time insulates the unit from the wooden base board. The diagram is self-explanatory.

The same method may be used in mounting the leak resistance (GL) and GL2. Some of you are going to wonder just why a grid condenser and grid leak are placed in the radio frequency amplifying tube. In the first place look at the diagram and you will see that the plate circuit of the detector tube connects to one end of the 15P tube circuit. If no grid condenser were placed in the 15P tube, we would then have a direct connection to the grid of the 15P tube, and then to the detector "B" battery from the rotor of the first condenser. This would then defeat the purpose of the grid in the tube itself. The grid would be at forty-five volts positive potential and no signal would be heard. Therefore, the grid condenser insulates the plate from the grid circuit.

The grid leak in the first tube prevents blocking of the grid circuit. The leak circuit passes from grid down through the "C" battery which biases the grid at a negative potential. This prevents the first tube from acting as a detector. From four and one-half to six volts are used as a "C" battery and ninety volts on the plates of the 15P amplifying tube. The "C" battery also cuts down the drain on the "B" battery.

In the case of the GL2 grid leak, it may be connected as shown in the diagram.

The new receiver uses the 15P "B" battery that the ordinary set except that forty-five volts is used on the detector tube. Because the forty-five volt connection passes through the VR resistance unit, the actual voltage on the detector tube is approximately twenty-five volts when the resistance unit is set at about ten thousand ohms. The Electrical Audion unit has the lowest resistance when the knob is turned in as far as it will go. This also applies to the Variomh unit. One quarter revolution with screw way, and ten megohms when out. However, do not uncover too far as this would open the grid leak circuit.

The set generally works best when the VR unit is set at ten thousand ohms or nearly way in. If the VR unit is found to be defective, a higher resistance value will be required. If you will notice in the drawing of the reflex resistance unit the numbers 55, 56, 51, 54 you will see that they have reference to some of the diagrams published.

This is simply to help you in wiring up the set or in checking up on yourself. Notice how the Electrical Audion unit may be mounted on a plate piece of insulating material as the Dubilier .004 mfd. fixed condenser is mounted to the Audion. The Electrostatic resistance units are all connected to the Dubilier condenser.

In the diagram shown on the start of February (four tube circuit), you will note connected across the secondary of the last audio transformer a unit marked V7 L. This is also an Electrical Audion unit. It may be used to control the volume input into the last tube. By leaving a variable resistance unit across the secondary of the transformer the crackling is easily may be reduced to a large degree. Many of the commercial wire- less companies have such a device connected across the antenna and ground posts of their sets to reduce the effect of static. However, this is the case of a broad range of sets tends to cut down long distance reception.

For example, on a slight wave of static is rather heavy and just has the circuit diagrams or the end of the leak marked "X" may be connected to pin "A" battery instead of to the coil end of the grid condenser. The grid leak was used to adjust for the tube used. In proper values are essential to go smooth operation of the receiver. The reason for including variable leak.

The VR and GL resistance and capacity unit is an extremely important item in the new set. This unit performs the function of an audio transformer in the ordinary receiver. We all know the perfect quality of response obtained with the reflex resistance coupled audio amplifier but have not made them, due to the large amount of "B" battery required.

MEDBURY SAYS

By John P. Medbury

THE United States Government is getting worried about Mexico. They haven't shot one of their presidents now for several weeks.

THE Mexicans are either getting civilized or lazy.

THEY probably found out that it's cheaper to keep the old ones than it is to elect new ones.

THE present ruler has had his position for two or three months. This is considered a steady job in Mexico.

A YEAR ago their presidents only worked by the day.

THEY were elected in the morning, shot in the afternoon and buried in the evening.

AND that's a full day for any man.

ONE president always made it a practice of keeping his citizens drunk so that they'd miss him when they shot.

NO wonder he wouldn't allow prohibition in Mexico.

THE chamber of commerce was in favor of presidential assassinations because it got their country so much publicity.

AND anytime they wanted a little extra advertising they shot an American.

THEY brought thousands of people to their city. Mostly United States soldiers.

THEY love our soldiers because they spend so much money.

YOU can't really blame them for shooting Americans. They're killed off nearly all their own people.

AND when the Mexicans have no body left to shoot they get downhearted.

FOR a while it got so bad that a Mexican president had to flee to this country and transact all his government business by long distance telephone.

A COUPLE of years ago it looked like they'd have to move their capital to Los Angeles.

WHEN BABY CRIES

By Carolyn Liebert

Editor and Writer on the Training and Education of Children.

IN recent years mothers have been strongly advised to pay no attention to baby's crying. They were told that when they listened for notice at other times than the hours set for feeding to let him cry his little eyes out until he gave up exhausted. He was then expected to learn the unobtainable of crying. Magically he would turn into a so-called good baby.

But those who advised this made the mistake common to most of us who try to cure a bad habit or start a new system of work. In trying to improve upon the old treatment, which made the parent a slave to baby's crying, they swung too far to the other extreme. Thus the mother who followed this advice rigidly found that instead of preventing baby's crying, she was creating a child who would cry himself into a state of hysteria.

Doctors of today, while stressing the importance of a regular routine for baby, are far from advising that crying be ignored. They believe it should be prevented by watchful care. Says a child specialist of world-wide reputation: "It is unwise always to rock a baby to sleep; it is also unwise to allow him to scream himself into a state of hysteria. A quiet, drowsy room, the steady pressure of the mother's hand in some rhythmic movement, will often quiet an impatient sleeper. This longer he cries the more trouble it is to soothe him. This refers only to infants who have not yet reached six months. Babies at different ages require different uppers."

BEDTIME STORY

Broadcast Daily Through WNAC

The Most Useful Trunk in the World

By Foxy Grandpa.

"THE elephant trunk is (or!) should Bobby one day as he ran into the house almost breathless."

"When?" I asked.

"In three weeks," said Bobby.

Now, of course, you know a circus in really much more interesting in a small town than it is in a big city, and to get up early and see the big tents put up is a real treat.

Everything was in readiness for the feeding of the animals, performers and workers in this fascinating moving town—for that is what a circus is. The advance agent had been around, buying hay and food and provisions weeks before. Here it was all delivered.

We wandered around and looked at the cages and then walked over to the place where the elephants were kept. They had just finished raising the big poles and helping to move around big elephants. Now they were waiting their light breakfast of a few bales of hay.

"I'm going to give this big fellow some peanuts," said Bobby, and he ran off to the peanut man who was busy roasting his peanuts to sell at the afternoon performance.

Back Bobby ran with the "red hot" peanuts in a bag.

"Where?" said Bobby. "They're hot, all right."

And as it happened Bobby was not the only one who thought they were hot.

"I will tell you why, Bobby. He'll be the best of the trunk of the elephant with the 'red hot' peanuts in a bag."

"What do you think he'll do with them?" Bobby asked.

"He'll eat them," Bobby said.

"He'll eat them," Bobby said.

"He'll eat them," Bobby said.

"He'll eat them," Bobby said.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

THE traveler, James Henson, who died in 1918, is said to have been the first Englishman who had been carried on an umbrella.

However, Michael Thonet, the famous French inventor, at the beginning of the 19th century, speaking of James Henson.

"And, like umbrellas, with their shields you in all sorts of weather."

What seems to indicate that the invention was already known in England at that time and used as a rain-protection.

It is very likely that James Henson was first developed the habit of using an umbrella during his travels in modern countries. Primarily, the umbrella was used as a protection against the rays of the sun. In the original home was in hot, brilliant, sun-baked climates. From earliest times the umbrella was the insignia of royalty and power in Eastern countries. The earliest ruins which have been unearthed of ancient Nineveh and Egypt, bear representations of kings going in procession with umbrellas carried over their heads.

Throughout Asia, the umbrella still retains something of the same significance. The British princes of India have among their titles that of "lord of the umbrella."

FINANCE

By B. C. FORBES

Henry Ford pays the sum on his Detroit, Toledo & Ironville Railroad $450,000 for work for working days each week that the railroad pays the same class of net earnings seven days each week, de- clares a veteran railway insider who, like hundreds of other railway employees, are writing bitter com- plaints about their share of the net earnings.

It is abundantly established by the letters received from every part of the country that many rail- road employees do work seven days a week and every week of the year.

One worker asks how the railroad owners and managers square their conduct and conscience with the advice injunction: "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work."

Brooks of writers condemn as an unimaging, unimaging "average" figures of working hours printed in this column by Daniel C. Dunn, of the Railway Age. Mr. Dunn himself has since realized that his figuring might be open to criticism. He now writes:

"On further consideration it has occurred to me there might be some criticism of the figure I gave because they were based on the rough assumption that each class of workers worked daily for each class of earnings in 54 hours. It is probable that in computing the number of hours worked by the number of days worked by employees paid on an hour basis, we have not been entirely and only "straight time" at the following rate used:

Using this method, the following results for 1923:

CLASS WORKED
Clerical employees.....302
The intermediate work-
Maintenance of equipment and Stations.....302
Transportation other than train engine and yard.....321
Engineering and maintenance employees.....321
The average day's work of the intermediate work-employees, etc., indicates that many of them must work more than 54 hours a year.

"The averages for all employees paid on hourly basis are: Hours,
54.6 days a year."

You will observe that Mr. Dunn admits that the actual figures for yardmen, switchmen, etc., include the work of 54.6 days a year, which is 54.6 days a year.

A townsmen on the Delaware,
Lackawanna & Western writes:
"I have been following your articles on railroading eight hours a day 245 days a year. I am one of the victims on the yardmen and most of us do work full time as it does not pay as married fellows to quit it."

"I got a day off with pay once in a while, but I was getting a seat in the first row of heaven."

It has been at the game for fifteen years and never lost a day until when I was compelled to quit because of the loss of my personal money as it is."

A New York, New Haven & Harford employee writes in 1923:
"The New York, New Haven and Boston Railroad and the New Haven are working their agents seven days a week without a day off except the day agents, who receive one day off a month. The night agents work seven days a week without a day off whatever."

The enormous pay of 37 cents an hour at $4.25 per day, is the average wage of an agent, not only that, but he is compensated for 37 hours a day, whereas Mr. Dunn claims eight-hour shifts."

The comparison with the Ford claim is given as a brush-stroke, without any comparison of a railway man who, after signing his name, is to be regarded as a quasi "old timer," he says:

"The minimum rate paid to those employed on the Ford is 80 cents an hour. The positions vary and run up as high as $1.25 per hour.
There is no reason why Henry Ford should pay any more than the other men, roads are paying, and exactly. Yet he says more of his employees above the 80 cent minimum than other railroads do their employees above the 60 cent rate."

Let me say the average on 300 Ford road is 80 cents per hour. If not, the working men must not ask per week, the yearly salary of one of his men is $2,720.60 or $460.00 per year more than the average of our men who work every day in the year.

This comes from a Long Island railroad worker.

"Townsmen, inventors, train drivers and telegraphers principally comprise the men governing the movements of trains and everyone knows that trains run at all hours of the day and night. I think, however, every day of the year this branch of the service works."

"We work eight hours a day, exclusive of meals, 263 days a year, and no vacations. There is no for the public do not know about men of this branch of the service, especially those who use Pullman coaches, but knowing we are not guaranteed the rates and rates of pay on the L. I. R. R."

"For the benefit of railroad directors and managers—and as a warning—I hope to relate in a later column the experience of a railway industry that continued use for advancing the abolition of the 54-hour work year. It got at the trouble that any unpreparedness could clearly see it was waiting for its abolition."

"To old jobs and become president."

That is the advice for young bank boys and other financiers who are experienced in the experience of William C. Knox, president of the American National Bank.

He filled in all the "old jobs" and learned the bank's routine as no other man knew it.

It took President Knox nearly forty years to reach the goal. Most of us would advise that he could be assured of reaching our life's objective even in two more years.

The Bowers Savings Bank has $210,000 in deposits with over $210,000 in assets. It is interesting to note that here in Massachusetts until recently savings accounts were not insured.

Behold Tree-Climbing Fish

He's Real. He Would Annoy Mr. Bryan

Reproduced by permission of International News Reel.

Here is a fish of which the scientific name is perlophthalmus. He leaves the water in the dry season, climbs trees to get the juice of fruits or otherwise, the moisture that he lacks.

A human being can only go for about three minutes without air. Put his head under water for more than three minutes and he is dead.

The average fish can only go for a few minutes without water. Take him up into the air and he soon dies.

The fish in this picture is the strange exception. He can live for long periods out of water. He has sharp spines on his fins that enable him to climb trees and drag himself up out of the water, climb a tree in the dry season, and he must go hunting for moisture elsewhere.

This fish was photographed in the Fiji Islands. It has eyes like the headlights of an automobile, but it is mild and means well.

Such a fish as this of course would greatly annoy William J. Bryan and others that do not believe in evolution.

The scientists tell you that all life began in the water. But under pressure of various kinds the water creatures climbed up on the shore; some of them developed wings and became birds. Others developed in different directions.

Here you actually see, living TODAY, a fish that leaves the water, climbs a tree in the dry season, then goes back again when there is plenty of water.

A fish like this is as annoying to Mr. Bryan or other haters of evolution as is the whale's skeleton exhibited in the British Museum. In that skeleton, back near the tail, you see two little hip bones, vestiges of the old days when the whale lived on dry land, before evolution took him into the water. The whale, you know, is a warm-blooded animal, gives birth to its young, and the mother nurses them the same as a cow nurses her calf.

Before it started out in the water to attain its present gigantic size the whale, according to the scientist, was about as big as a tree shrew, and you could have carried a couple of such primitive whales around in your pocket. How is that for evolution? Do you wonder it annoys Mr. Bryan?

Also this tree-climbing fish is closely related to a certain mud fish, most important of all the fishes. The important thing is that when you examine the bladder of that mud fish, which buries itself in the mud and lives there for a long time, you find faintly outlined veins carrying red blood.

That bladder with those veins is the beginning of that which, through evolution, became the highly developed pair of lungs through which you breathe.

This is all highly complicated, disturbing and puzzling. But let the evolutionists light it out with Mr. Bryan. As for us, let us say with the old Biblical writer: "I will praise the Lord, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

That would be a good prayer for this fish, if the poor thing could understand prayer, or the duty of prayer, but it can't.

Better Trust Rickenbacker

American Ace Shot Opposition to Air Service Full of Holes at Hearing

Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, American ace, shot the opposition to the Air Service full of holes in his testimony before the House committee, investigating the aircraft situation. Rickenbacker said anti-aircraft guns were ineffective. He did not speak from some book; he spoke from experience, having been shot at countless times, from every altitude, and always ineffectually.

He ridiculed General Drum's statement that he could protect the country against bombers by using anti-aircraft guns, and said such a statement simply proved that its author didn't understand what he was talking about.

Rickenbacker's prophecy of the increased importance of aircraft in future warfare is so clearly within the lines of probability that to ignore it involves a national calamity.

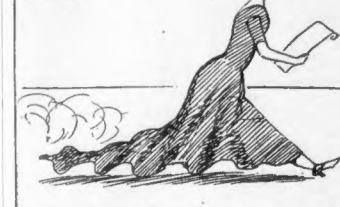

His belief that a sufficient air force would enable a country to end a war in forty-eight hours should hold before our small-scale aircraft authorities the vital need of acting before it is too late.

The famous flier's reference to commercial aviation as the enduring basis of a national defense goes straight to the mark, as does his declaration that a unified air command is absolutely indispensable to the creation of a service worthy of the name.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

THERE isn't any Santa Claus!

All my life long I have envied a man his clothes! Not for their intrinsic beauty, of course, I have known there was no aesthetic reason for the eye-searing things that a man wears.

Look at a man in his shirt sleeves, for instance—and what do you see?

A waistcoat that wrinkles over the most shrinking front, and doesn't come within even kissing distance of his trousers and in the back.

Trousers that belch around his legs like twin lusting cups or a vase of the Ming dynasty, and are held on only by a string and a leather belt.

A shirt that bulges over the straight back, shows in a husband, temperamental way over the belt, and ends in front, unless he is constantly holding his breath and tucking it in.

Only under the merciful covering of his coat does a man look as though he were made in one piece.

But I have always nursed the fond delusion that men's clothes WERE comfortable. And I have with shame and envy every time a man denied woman for her sartorial follies.

Never again! NOW I know better. I have THIED wearing men's clothes!

At least—I have tried wearing knickerbockers. And pajamas! And never, in all my blameworthy life, have I been so surprised—and so bitterly UNCOMFORTABLE!

Next to an old-fashioned mustard plaster, there is nothing better, more sticky or more annoying on a July day than a pair of knickerbockers and woolen gait stockings.

Next to a bad conscience, there is nothing so conducive to insomnia as a pair of pajamas, that lie around your waist, rub your knees and give you night dreams, even on a toast and lettuce diet.

Next to the guillotine, there is nothing more cruel to the human neck than a stiff linen collar.

Give me back my wild free sport attire, my swimming, tender silk stockings, and my crepe de chine tulip gown!

But you can never give me back my lost illusion!

As far as the "comfort, utility and sensibleness" of men's clothes are concerned, there ISN'T any Santa Claus! ISN'T he a myth?

The love of a mother is never exhausted. It never changes, it never learns so much.

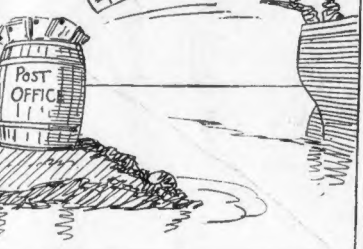

Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much. Wisdom is humble that he knows no more.

He does nothing who conspires a despairing man with his words, but he is a friend who in a difficulty helps to decide, where there is need of deeds.

Ten Children in Need
Helping Hand Editor:

I know a family who is very much in need. There are ten children, boys, 15, 13, 9, 8 and 2 and girls, 14, 11, 7 and 4 and baby 8 months. Boys need shoes, sweaters and blouses.

The father works only two days a week. The boys are not fit to go to school on account of not having shoes. The girls need dresses and petticoats. Baby needs clothes of all kinds. I hope some kind readers will help them.

A LITTLE while, and winter is past, and snow, and frost, and ice, and cold, and darkness, and gloom, and despair, and all the things that make life so dreary, are gone. A little time, and the sun will be shining, and the birds will be singing, and the flowers will be blooming, and the world will be a new and better place.

BEST DRESSED WOMAN IN EUROPE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

S O passes the glory of this world! Mrs. Edward H. Smith-Wilkinson, the most extensively dressed woman in Europe, died the other day in a London nursing home.

Although she had no beauty, wit, knowledge, charm, connections or scandal, Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson attracted wide attention by sheer display in dress.

One of her gowns was headed in diamonds, and was reported to be worth $5,000,000.

Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson's money was left her by her first husband. When she was past forty, she married a young man twenty years her junior, who left her, because he said that while she spent plenty of money, he got nothing, and was compelled to do menial labor and to act as his wife's maid for only a few shillings of spending money.

As we pass from the cradle to the grave, some acquire distinction in one way, and some in another. It is Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson's claim to distinction that she spent excessive money on dress. She has gone to a place where people do not dress at all—at least, according to conventional ideas, where they wear only nightgowns.

It is feared that she will be but an undistinguished member of that community. To be noted for dress is to be famed for what you can put on, and the common report is that one is famous there for what he has inside of him. Nobody ever accused Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson of knowing anything, or having much adornment to her character. She has had to leave all her clothes behind, and all the money with which they were bought.

Perhaps the grief of those who mourn her will be all the more poignant on account of her death, for she lacked those things that make death beautiful.

AFTERMATH OF THE ECLIPSE

By Garrett P. Servis
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"Today it has been my pleasure, and the pleasure of twenty million others, to view the total eclipse of the sun. This has aroused my curiosity, and I would like to ask a few questions.

"I have often seen pictures of sunspots in the chromosphere and the photosphere, but I've often wondered if they could penetrate to the core of the sun.

"I would like to know if the shadow bands were traveling horizontally to the northeast and seemed to be running parallel to the northeast from the sun. Could these mysterious shadow bands be the shadows of our atmosphere as they traveled with the wind, or could it be some reflection from the sun's corona?

"What were those flickering flames from the chromosphere which showed at the lower right-hand side of the moon's edge during the totality?

"When will the next eclipse be?—R. R. New York."

THE writer of this letter tells me he is fifteen years old. Perhaps he has the making of an astronomer in him, for at that age it is not common for boys to be so familiarly of the chromosphere, the photosphere, and other special phenomena of the sun, or to observe celestial spectacles with the care and attention to detail that he has exhibited in this case.

There are a great many older readers who may not know that the chromosphere is the gas layer just above the surface of the sun which may be seen with the spectrohelograph at any time, and whose corona is seen during eclipses, presenting a bold red ring. It lies above the photosphere, which is the brilliant white surface of the sun that we all see when we merely shade our eyes, and from which most of its light issues.

The red prominences, often described as "red flames," rise out of the chromosphere. But it is in the photosphere that the sunspots are seen as apparent depressions. The latest studies of the sun indicate that they have a great depth, and they certainly do not penetrate into the core of the sun.

The shadow bands have never before been seen by so great a number of observers, largely because never before has the public been so highly educated and intelligent public.

Similar appearances have been seen on the surface of the moon, but there are few astronomers who look at such things with the public's eyes.

For them they have no mystery. Consequently no attraction in the presence of so many real mysteries and unsolved problems. There is an old story of a man who saw a comet whose track came down across Hudson's Bay, but around New York the sun sets too early for the spectacle.

ONCE-OVERS

WHAT ARE YOU SAVING FOR COMFORT IN THE SUNSET YEARS OF LIFE?

If you have reached the age of forty it is to be hoped that you have begun to think of getting something ahead for your non-productive years.

If you have good sense you have taken the advice of older men and women and you have saved for the future. You have saved for the future, and you have saved for the future.

But it is more than probable that you have had sick spells frequently, and the fact that you cannot stand as much as in former years has made you realize that you are on the downward slope of life.

At any rate you have neither money nor opportunity to start in business which might bring you on the downward slope of life. You have a job and you have established a certain plan of living, which leaves you little better off from one year's end to the next. And you cannot see how you are going to make much headway with the little stakes you save from year to year.

Don't worry foolishly about it. Take better care of yourself, keep up to the modern trend in your work and devote yourself more assiduously to your job and save more.
